MOOD: 😟 anxious

Guess what?

Next week, the NG tube comes out, I get moved to the Comprehensive Inpatient Rehabilitation Unit, and...

...some of my physical therapy moves to the pool!

Daphne, stand by to resuscitate. 0.0

I am so going to be home for the 4th, however. Dammit. Even if the prophylaxis means I don't eat a damned thing but saltines and ~~ginger ale~~ Ensure.

All right, unconscious mind. We're coming to an accommodation. If the dreams are you cleaning

Elvis doesn't live here anymore.

Hey there. Sorry about the drama. It was... it was an emotional decision, and I didn't Poppets. Puppets. Poppet puppets. Scary.

COLLAPSE

Well, at least you have narrative circularity. You might want to try not to work so hard for art next time, however...

Well, it's not as if you drowned last time you were in one of those. And yet... Maybe we should tell them to add "Avoid electrical outlets" to your chart?

(I was just reviewing a file yesterday on someone who should have...)

Oh, man, those are some words that should never be spoken aloud. Let's see, the lights could come loose and land in the pool with you. Godzilla could stomp on the hospital. A large fellow patient may decide to cannonball . . .

I might have to be rushed to a hospital.

Oh, wait...

You know, every time I read about that NG tube, my mind translates it as "No Good", and it's halfway to reading 'NFG' before Editorial catches up with the rewrite. A mind is an odd place to live.

Anyway, good news on the upcoming removal. As indescribably squicky as the actual process is, it's certainly worth it.

And surely the pool can't be -that- hazardous, can it? Even if you are skinny enough not to float, those little arm-puff things can keep you upright and above water. (Plus, under a shirt, you can pretend to have Hulk-like muscles-- Charles Atlas look out!)
